8. If you have extra household expenses, such as a security system, be sure to include the quarterly (or whatever) expenses here, divided by three.
9. Your checkbook stubs and/or online banking records will tell you a lot of this stuff. But you may be vague about your cash or credit card expenditures. For example, you may not know how much you spend at the supermarket, or how much you spend on gas, etc. But there is a simple way to find out. Keep notes on your Smartphone or iPad for two weeks (there are apps for that, such as Daily Cost—$1.99). Jot down everything you pay cash (or use credit cards) for—on the spot, right after you pay it. At the end of those two weeks, you'll be able to take that record and make a realistic guess of what should be put down in these categories that now puzzle you. (Multiply the two-week figure by two, and you'll have the monthly figure.)

10. Incidentally, for U.S. citizens, looking ahead to next April 15, be sure to check with your local IRS office or a reputable accountant to find out if you can deduct the expenses of your job-hunt on your federal (and state) income tax returns. At this writing, some job-hunters can, if—big IF—this is not your first job that you're looking for, if you haven't been unemployed too long, and if you aren't making a career-change. Do go find out what the latest "ifs" are. If the IRS says you are eligible, keep careful receipts of everything related to your job-hunt, as you go along: telephone calls, stationery, printing, postage, travel, etc.

Optional Exercise

You may wish to put down other rewards, besides money, that you would hope for, from your next job or career. These might be:

- Adventure
- Challenge
- Respect
- Influence
- Popularity
- Fame
- Power
- Intellectual stimulation from the other workers there
- A chance to be creative
- A chance to help others
- A chance to exercise leadership
- A chance to make decisions
- A chance to use your expertise
- A chance to bring others closer to God
- Other:

If you do check off things on this list, arrange your answers in order of importance to you, and then add them to the petal.
