

Solutions to these three mazes can be found at thepuzzlerbook.com.

1. Lewis Carroll, the author of Alice in Wonderland, drew this maze for his family in the 1850s. You must start at one of the three entrances on the left and find your way to the diamond in the center. Incidentally, the famed puzzle writer Martin Gardner said that pencil mazes should not be solved with a pencil, but instead with a toothpick. He said “morons” could be taught to do it with a pencil. But I say, go ahead and use a pencil if you want. I won’t judge.
